

Introduction

The Wolverton Centre is a Sexual Health Clinic specialising in sexually transmitted infections (STIs), HIV, contraception and specialist genitourinary medicine services (for example genital skin conditions).

Established in 1995, the centre continues to grow in popularity, with attendances now exceeding 18,000 a year. The department moved in November 2008 to modern, attractive premises on the Kingston Hospital site.

No referral is required to come to the service. You can attend either a booked appointment or come to one of the walk-in clinics.

Staff are specially trained and experienced in all sexual health issues and are non-judgmental, friendly and approachable.

On-site facilities are available for performing sexual health screens, with many results available immediately. All treatments and antibiotics are free and issued directly from the clinic.
